

	The bridge was unsafe.
	Passepartout was ready to throw himself on the American.
	Mr Fogg asked Passepartout to 'go and see what's the matter'...
	The travellers all went back to their seats.
	The official asked the passengers whether they would be good enough to give up their carriage.
	The train stopped in front of a red signal.
	The bridge fell with a crash into the water below.
	Stamp W. Proctor liked the idea.

Question:

1. If one of these events did not happen in the story, would the chapter end in the same way?
2. Are any of these events more important than the rest?
