Dear Diary,

I can't believe this is happening. This morning, I woke up and thought that it was just a terrible nightmare, but then I realised I wasn't at home, I wasn't with my family, I was somewhere else... Somewhere cold, dirty and frightening. Somewhere I didn't feel safe. I feel so silly now, that I was just sat at school daydreaming when it happened. Everyone started to panic and scramble towards the door. The teachers were shouting frantically, I don't think they knew exactly what was happening either...
