

Salva wakes and realises everyone in his groups has left him behind.

Salva is left behind in the barn and does not know what to do.

The woman lets Salva stay in her barn. He works hard so he is not sent away.

Nya places the water container on her head and begins the journey back home.

Salva hears voices coming towards him. They belong to Dinka tribesmen. He hopes his family is with them.

Nya arrives at the pond.

The woman decides to leave because the water supply is running low and the fighting is getting closer.

Salva sees a woman sitting outside a house.

Salva approaches the women and sees she has Dinka tribal markings.

Nya collects water using a gourd shell.
